Each town will be entitled to its usual representation. P. C. SULLIVAN, Dist. Com. A. W. BALDWIN, Dist. Com. Milton, July 31, 1860. "A Lesson of the Hour." An article has appeared in the New York Independent bearing the above title, written by Horace Greeley, of the New York Tribune, the subject of which is William H. Seward, and the object seems to be to teach the "young politicians" of the country the lesson, "be faithful." In reading this article we were strongly impressed with the feeling that a far more significant lesson to young politicians was to be drawn from Mr. Greeley's course toward Governor Seward. The article, we think, in its whole scope and tenor, is not only in extremely bad taste, but it is an insult to the hosts of true and loyal republicans who deeply reverence and ardently love William H. Seward for his great ability and the unselfish devotion with which he has so long taught and defended republican principles. Mr. Greeley draws a vivid picture of the storm of detraction and calumny with which Mr. Seward has been so wantonly assailed by his unscrupulous political opponents during the whole course of his public life, but fails to say much of the unexampled steadiness and courage with which he has nobly breast the storm, and carried upward the cause to which he has given his whole heart and energies. He then goes on to show the present attitude of the pro-slavery parties toward Mr. Seward, for the purpose of proving that all the abuse and slander which has been heaped upon him was insincere and hypocritical; that his political enemies themselves did not believe the lies with which they were flooding the whole country. Was it necessary that republicans should be told this? And more than all, was it necessary that Mr. Horace Greeley should tell it to them? Are they such dolts and idiots that they for a moment believed that the democrats were sincere in their abuse of Gov. Seward? That the whole storm was not a piece of hollow, rotten lying, to serve political purposes? An endeavor to destroy Mr. Seward's influence, and damage the republican cause? Any man who did not at once perceive so obvious a truth does not possess sufficient intelligence to belong to the republican party, and ought to be cast ignominiously out of it. But how stood Mr. Horace Greeley in this matter? While the great mass of the true and tried republicans of the country were drawn closer to Mr. Seward because of the base attempt of a rotten and corrupt pro-slavery administration and party to tear and trample him down; while they took him into their heart of hearts, and looked forward with ill-repressed impatience to the time when, with strong and united hands, they could bear him up high above his corrupt vilifiers, and triumphantly vindicating at the same time, the man and the cause, Mr. Horace Greeley was looking on with a cool and selfish calculation, to see if he could not avail himself of this dirty work of our slavery-loving adversaries, and by defeating Mr. Seward, gratify a long cherished feeling of base, deep-seated enmity. He was able to use the unclean weapons furnished by our enemies, and Mr. Seward was defeated. We trust his desire for revenge is satisfied, and think he ought to be satisfied.

We have long had great respect and admiration for Mr. Greeley, but our respect and admiration were based upon the belief that he was honestly, conscientiously, and selflessly attached to the principles of the republican party; that he was in no sense an intriguing politician; was entirely above the small itching ambition for office which governs so many of our politicians; that his impulses were fervid and humane; that his sometimes erratic opinions were only the uncalculating frankness of a man of strong, generous and entirely honest convictions; that he looked upon the position he had nobly won as the leader and head of the most widely circulated and influential journal in the country, and the good which that position would enable him to do—as the object of his highest ambition, and his wealth and fame it brought him as the best reward he could receive. We need not say how much we have been disappointed at his recent course and the exposure of his motives, how much mortification we suffered when we found that he had been always hankering after the flesh-pots of office. We do not think it now becomes him to parade Mr. Seward before the public for any purpose. We warn him off from the domain of which he is trying to take possession. He is a power, and has no title or license to enter there; besides, in his tracks we find a filth which is highly offensive to all who value and venerate the premises. We have no disposition to enlarge upon this subject. We have long held our peace, and should not now have spoken were it not that the article in the Independent excited feelings which we could not repress. As a friend of Governor Seward, we beg of Mr. Greeley to draw his lessons from some other source. We think it will be better for him and a great deal more satisfactory to the great mass of the republicans of the country.

The Slave Extremism in Texas. It is believed by the politicians and others at Washington that the reported insurrectionary symptoms among the slaves of Texas, are got up by partisans for effect. It is very probable that such is the case. Abolitionists are reported to have been hanged "for distributing arms to slaves." Two Campbellite preachers, named Blount and McKinney, the former from this state, were lynched in Texas last winter, and these insurrections are attributed to them and their friends. The whole Campbellite persuasion are looked upon with suspicion in Texas, as all religious organizations must be in every slave country. Hence the slave holders are making war upon them, endeavoring to drive them out of the state. It is not improbable that the Campbellites make resistance, and endeavor to meet their oppressors with the same weapons used against them. The feud, from this beginning, may have grown up to some magnitude, but it is probable that the fears of the slaveholders have magnified it ten fold. Blount, after he had been lynched, came back to his home in Green county, Wis., and petitioned the legislature for redress. He never was an abolitionist, or even a republican, but avowed his adherence to pro-slavery democracy, after he had been nearly killed by a mob of slave holders. It is therefore false to attribute this Texas insurrection, if there is one, to anti-slavery men. It is confined entirely within the camp of the slave holder themselves and their allies. They fear to have even such pro-slavery sentiments as this Blount could preach, instilled into the minds of the slaves, under the guise of Christianity, and hence they drive him and his friends out of the state by force. This is another instance of the fear engendering barbarism of slavery.

Escape of S. M. Booth.—The telegraph informs us that S. M. Booth has escaped from the custom house at Milwaukee. While we are heartily glad that he is once more at liberty, our suspicions are strong that government employees have aided him. No one appears to have been about the establishment but the keeper, while but a short time ago the building was bristling with arms carried by ferocious guards. Where was the watchful, lynx-eyed Jehu, the model of marshals? We do not desire to insinuate that he was privy to this escape. The plan was probably left from him, as he is too stupid to comprehend the necessity of getting rid of Booth. The truth is the government had won an elephant, and did not know what to do with him, so they connived at his escape.

A Good Example.—We learn from a correspondent at Edgerton that the Wide-Awake republicans of Fulton have already completed a thorough canvass of that town and have prepared an alphabetical poll list for future use. This list contains at this time the names of 477 voters, which indicates a republican majority of about thirty votes, as they expressed their sentiments last spring. "But this," says our correspondent "is no evidence by which to judge the future. The leading democrats are about evenly divided between Douglas and Breckinridge, and scores of the middle men are coming to the glorious standard of 'Honest Old Abe.' Hence set us down as rolling up, this fall, a generous republican majority over all opposing candidates and parties, for the republicans of Edgerton and Fulton, although they have much more stern opposition to contend with than any other town or ward in Rock county, are in no wise deficient in action and duty." Our correspondent, who is himself a working republican, speaks truly of the efficient services of the staunch republicans of Fulton. They labor hard, and as in this instance, they act about their business promptly and vigorously, and consequently may be counted upon with certainty when the day of election tells the story.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.—The steamer Prince Albert has arrived with dates to the 24th. Affairs in Syria were unchanged. Matters continued to wear a very grave aspect. France was actually preparing for a powerful intervention and had notified the other states in order to have concert of action. The Sultan had written to France and England an expression of his grief at the events which have transpired, and promising an effort to establish order. It was reported that the Russian government had expressed a desire to act in harmony with France and England. Hostilities were about to commence in China at latest dates. Garibaldi announces his intention of annexing Sicily to Sardinia.

From Pike's Peak. St. Joseph, July 31. The Pike's Peak express, with dates to July 23d, reached here this evening, bringing the following items of news: DENVER CITY, July 23. A shooting affair occurred in California Gulch last week, resulting in the death of a man named Smith, from Benton county, Arkansas, while in pursuit of his wife, who had run away with a man named Curtis from the same place. Smith shot at Curtis from the same place, and Curtis, in turn, shot at Smith, killing him instantly. Curtis, a notorious man in the Ft. Scott difficulties in eastern Kansas, and James Lafferty, had a shooting affair in Colorado City last Saturday, in which Devlin received six balls from Lafferty's pistol. The latter was tried by a people's court, and a verdict of justifiable homicide was rendered. Last evening an auctioneer named M. Hadley, who has a wife and two children in Galesburg, Ill., was accidentally shot and killed by a bar-keeper named Wm. Bee, formerly of Chicago, but recently from Rock Island. James Gordon, formerly from Boston, but lately from Nebraska, who has hitherto enjoyed the reputation of a peaceable man, shot a bar-keeper one night last week while on a spree, seriously wounding him in the leg. On Friday evening he threatened to shoot several persons and was only prevented from doing so by the interference of bystanders. Later in the night he attacked a young German in a saloon and after a long and desperate struggle, he killed him. Next morning a meeting of the citizens was called and nearly 8000 raised, and parties sent out in all directions in pursuit of Gordon, who was discovered entrenched with a party of friends in Fort Lupton, 25 miles down the Platte. He finally made his escape after having his horse shot and being himself wounded.

THE GREATEST SEMINARY.—The freestone is a seminary of infinite importance. It is important because it is universal, and because the education it bestows, being woven into each of the woof of childhood, gives form and color to the whole texture of life. There are few who can receive the honors of a college, but all are graduates of the hearth. The learning of the university may fade from the recollection; its classic lore may moulder in the halls of memory. But the simple lessons of home, enameled upon the heart of childhood, defy the rust of years and outlive the narrowest of graves. So deep, so lasting, indeed, are the impressions of early life, that you often see a man in the imbecility of age holding fast in his recollection the events of childhood, while all the wide space between that and the present hour is a blank and forgotten waste. You have seen an old and frail obliterated picture, and in the attempt to have it cleaned and restored, you may have seen it fade away, while a brighter and more perfect picture, painted by the hand of nature, is revealed to view. This portrait, first drawn upon the canvas, is an apt illustration of youth, and although it may be concealed by some after design, still the original traits will shine through the outward picture, giving it tone while fresh, and surviving it in decay. Such is the freestone—the great institution furnished by Providence for the education of man.

Not very long ago the mammoth elephant "Columbus" died from injuries received from falling through a bridge which broke under him. The owners of the animal used the bridge company for damages. The latter resisted and claimed that they were not liable, and that there was no obligation upon them to maintain roads and bridges safe and convenient for the driving of elephants over them for exhibition, but that if the plaintiff chose to use their roads and bridges for that purpose, he did it at his own risk. The court have decided for the plaintiff.

Fear is a prodigious magnifier where it has been excited by any unusual object. No traveler ever saw a small tiger, and no landsman ever experienced a gale at sea that was not a tornado. KNOXVILL, Ind., July 31. The republican mass meeting yesterday was very large, estimated at 15,000 people present. Speeches were made by O. M. Clay, Caleb B. Smith, Mr. Camback and others.

Scott difficulties in eastern Kansas, and James Lafferty, had a shooting affair in Colorado City last Saturday, in which Devlin received six balls from Lafferty's pistol. The latter was tried by a people's court, and a verdict of justifiable homicide was rendered. Last evening an auctioneer named M. Hadley, who has a wife and two children in Galesburg, Ill., was accidentally shot and killed by a bar-keeper named Wm. Bee, formerly of Chicago, but recently from Rock Island. James Gordon, formerly from Boston, but lately from Nebraska, who has hitherto enjoyed the reputation of a peaceable man, shot a bar-keeper one night last week while on a spree, seriously wounding him in the leg. On Friday evening he threatened to shoot several persons and was only prevented from doing so by the interference of bystanders. Later in the night he attacked a young German in a saloon and after a long and desperate struggle, he killed him. Next morning a meeting of the citizens was called and nearly 8000 raised, and parties sent out in all directions in pursuit of Gordon, who was discovered entrenched with a party of friends in Fort Lupton, 25 miles down the Platte. He finally made his escape after having his horse shot and being himself wounded.

THE GREATEST SEMINARY.—The freestone is a seminary of infinite importance. It is important because it is universal, and because the education it bestows, being woven into each of the woof of childhood, gives form and color to the whole texture of life. There are few who can receive the honors of a college, but all are graduates of the hearth. The learning of the university may fade from the recollection; its classic lore may moulder in the halls of memory. But the simple lessons of home, enameled upon the heart of childhood, defy the rust of years and outlive the narrowest of graves. So deep, so lasting, indeed, are the impressions of early life, that you often see a man in the imbecility of age holding fast in his recollection the events of childhood, while all the wide space between that and the present hour is a blank and forgotten waste. You have seen an old and frail obliterated picture, and in the attempt to have it cleaned and restored, you may have seen it fade away, while a brighter and more perfect picture, painted by the hand of nature, is revealed to view. This portrait, first drawn upon the canvas, is an apt illustration of youth, and although it may be concealed by some after design, still the original traits will shine through the outward picture, giving it tone while fresh, and surviving it in decay. Such is the freestone—the great institution furnished by Providence for the education of man.

Not very long ago the mammoth elephant "Columbus" died from injuries received from falling through a bridge which broke under him. The owners of the animal used the bridge company for damages. The latter resisted and claimed that they were not liable, and that there was no obligation upon them to maintain roads and bridges safe and convenient for the driving of elephants over them for exhibition, but that if the plaintiff chose to use their roads and bridges for that purpose, he did it at his own risk. The court have decided for the plaintiff.

Fear is a prodigious magnifier where it has been excited by any unusual object. No traveler ever saw a small tiger, and no landsman ever experienced a gale at sea that was not a tornado. KNOXVILL, Ind., July 31. The republican mass meeting yesterday was very large, estimated at 15,000 people present. Speeches were made by O. M. Clay, Caleb B. Smith, Mr. Camback and others.

From Pike's Peak. St. Joseph, July 31. The Pike's Peak express, with dates to July 23d, reached here this evening, bringing the following items of news: DENVER CITY, July 23. A shooting affair occurred in California Gulch last week, resulting in the death of a man named Smith, from Benton county, Arkansas, while in pursuit of his wife, who had run away with a man named Curtis from the same place. Smith shot at Curtis from the same place, and Curtis, in turn, shot at Smith, killing him instantly. Curtis, a notorious man in the Ft. The latter was tried by a people's court, and a verdict of justifiable homicide was rendered. Last evening an auctioneer named M. ## A Lesson of the Hour.

An article has appeared in the New York Independent bearing the above title, written by Horace Greeley, of the New York Tribune, the subject of which is William H. Seward, and the object seems to be to teach the "young politicians" of the country the lesson, "be faithful." In reading this article we were strongly impressed with the feeling that a far more significant lesson to young politicians was to be drawn from Mr. Greeley's course toward Governor Seward. The article, we think, in its whole scope and tenor, is not only in extremely bad taste, but it is an insult to the hosts of true and loyal republicans who deeply reverence and ardently love William H. Seward, and for his great ability and the unselfish devotion with which he has so long taught and defended republican principles.

Mr. Greeley draws a vivid picture of the storm of detraction and calumny with which Mr. Seward has been so wantonly assailed by his unscrupulous political opponents during the whole course of his public life, but fails to say much of the unexampled steadiness and courage with which he has so nobly braved the storm, and carried upward the cause to which he has given his whole heart and energies. He then goes on to show the present attitude of the pro-slavery parties toward Mr. Seward, for the purpose of proving that all the abuse and slander which has been heaped upon him was insincere and hypocritical; that his political enemies themselves did not believe the lies with which they were flooding the whole country. Was it necessary that republicans should be told this? And more than all, was it necessary that Mr. Horace Greeley should tell it to them? Are they such dolts and idiots that they for a moment believed that the democrats were sincere in their abuse of Gov. Seward? That the whole storm was not a piece of hollow, rotten lying, to serve political purposes?—An endeavor to destroy Mr. Seward's influence, and damage the republican cause? Any man who did not at once perceive so obvious a truth does not possess sufficient intelligence to belong to the republican party, and ought to be cast ignominiously out of it.

But how stood Mr. Horace Greeley in this matter? While the great mass of the true and tried republicans of the country were drawn closer to Mr. Seward because of the base attempt of a rotten and corrupt pro-slavery administration and party to tear him into their heart of hearts, and looked forward with ill-repressed impatience to the time when, with strong and united hands, they could bear him up high above his corrupt vilifiers, and triumphantly vindicate at the same time, the man and the cause, Mr. Horace Greeley was looking on with a cool and selfish calculation, to see if he could not avail himself of this dirty work of our slavery-loving adversaries, and by defeating Mr. Seward, gratify a long cherished feeling of base, deep-seated enmity. He was able to use the unclean weapons furnished by our enemies, and Mr. Seward was defeated. We trust his desire for revenge is satisfied, and think he ought to be satisfied.

We have long had great respect and admiration for Mr. Greeley, but our respect and admiration were based upon the belief that he was honestly, conscientiously, unselfishly attached to the principles of the republican party; that he was in no sense an intriguing politician; was entirely above the small feeling ambition for office which governs so many of our politicians; that his impulses were fervid and humane; that his sometimes erratic opinions were only the uncalculating frankness of a man of strong, generous and entirely honest convictions; that he looked upon the position he had nobly won as the leader and head of the most widely circulated and influential journal in the country, and the good which that position would enable him to do—as the object of his highest ambition, and the wealth and fame it brought him as the best reward he could receive.

We need not say how much we have been disappointed at his recent course and the exposure of his motives, how much mortification we suffered when we found that he had been always hankering after the flesh-pots of office. We do not think it now becomes him to parade Mr. Seward before the public for any purpose. We warn him off from the domain of which he is trying to take possession. He is a pouter, and has no title or license to enter there; besides, in his tracks we find a filth which is highly offensive to all who value and venerate the premises.

We have no disposition to enlarge upon this subject. We have long held our peace, and should not now have spoken were it not that the article in the Independent excited feelings which we could not repress. As a friend of Governor Seward, we beg of Mr. Greeley to draw his lessons from some other source. We think it will be better for him and a great deal more satisfactory to the great mass of the republicans of the country.

The Slave Excitement in Texas.

It is believed by the politicians and others at Washington that the reported insurrectionary symptoms among the slaves of Texas, are got up by partisans for effect. It is very probable that such is the case.

Abolitionists are reported to have been hanged "for distributing arms to slaves."

Two Campbellite preachers, named Blount and McKinney, the former from this state, were lynched in Texas last winter, and these insurrections are attributed to them and their friends. The whole Campbellite persecution are looked upon with suspicion in Texas, as all religious organizations must be in every slave country. Hence the slave holders are making war upon them, endeavoring to drive them out of the state. It is not improbable that the Campbellites make resistance, and endeavor to meet their oppressors with the same weapons used against them. The feud, from this beginning, may have grown up to some magnitude, but it is probable that the fears of the slaveholders have magnified it ten fold. Blount, after he had been lynched, came back to his home in Green county, Wis., and petitioned the legislature for redress. He never was an abolitionist, or even a republican, but avowed his adherence to pro-slavery democracy, after he had been nearly killed by a mob of slave holders. It is therefore false to attribute this Texas insurrection, if there is one, to anti-slavery men. It is confined entirely within the camp of the slave holders themselves and their allies. They fear to have even such pro-slavery sentiments as this Blount could preach, instilled into the minds of the slaves, under the guise of Christianity, and hence they drive him and his friends out of the state by force. This is another instance of the fear engendering barbarism of slavery.

Escape of S. M. Booth.—The telegraph informs us that S. M. Booth has escaped from the custom house at Milwaukee. While we are heartily glad that he is once more at liberty, our suspicions are strong that government employees have aided him. No one appears to have been about the establishment but the keeper, while but a short time ago the building was bristling with arms carried by ferocious guards. Where was the watchful, lynx-eyed Jesu, the model of marshals? We do not desire to insinuate that he was privy to this escape. The plan was probably kept from him, as he is too stupid to comprehend the necessity of getting rid of Booth. The truth is the government had won an elephant, and did not know what to do with him, so they convined at his escape.

A Good Example.—We learn from a correspondent at Edgerton that the Wide-Awake republicans of Fulton have already completed a thorough canvass of that town and have prepared an alphabetical poll list for future use. This list contains at this time the names of 177 voters, which indicates a republican majority of about thirty votes, as they expressed their sentiments last spring. "But this," says our correspondent "is no evidence by which to judge the future. The feeling democrats are about evenly divided between Douglas and Breckinridge, and scores of the middle men are coming to the glorious standard of 'Honest old Abe.' Hence set us down as rolling up, this fall, a generous republican majority over all opposing candidates and parties, for the republicans of Edgerton and Fulton, although they have much more stern opposition to contend with than any other town or ward in Rock county, are in no wise deficient in action and duty."

Our correspondent, who is himself a working republican, speaks truly of the efficient services of the staunch republicans of Fulton. They labor hard, and as in this instance, they act about their business promptly and vigorously, and consequently may be counted upon with certainty when the day of election tells the story.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.—The steamer Prince Albert has arrived with dates to the 24th. Affairs in Syria were unchanged. Matters continued to wear a very grave aspect. France was actually preparing for a powerful intervention and had notified the other states in order to have concert of action. The Sultan had written to France and England an expression of his grief at the events which have transpired, and promising an effort to establish order. It was reported that the Russian government had expressed a desire to act in harmony with France and England. Hostilities were about to commence in China at latest dates. Garibaldi announces his intention of annexing Sicily to Sardinia.

From Pike's Peak.

St. Joseph, July 31.

The Pike's Peak express, with dates to July 23d, reached here this evening, bringing the following Denver news:

A shooting affray occurred in California Gulch last week, resulting in the death of a man named Smith, from Benton county, Arkansas, while in pursuit of his wife who had run away with a man named Curtis, from the same place. Smith shot at Curtis missing him and wounding his wife. Curtis returned the fire, killing Smith instantly.

Pat Devlin, notorious in the Ft. Scott difficulties in eastern Kansas, and James Lafferty, had a shooting affair in Colorado city last Saturday, in which Devlin received six balls from Lafferty's pistol. The latter was tried by a people's court, and a verdict of justifiable homicide was rendered.

Last evening an auctioneer named M. Hadley, who has a wife and two children in Galesburg, Ill., was accidentally shot and killed by a bar keeper named Wm. Bates, formerly of Chicago, but recently from Rock Island. Bates is in custody.

James Gordon, formerly from Boston, but lately from Nebraska, who has hitherto enjoyed a reputation of a peaceable man, shot a bar keeper one night last week while on a spree, seriously wounding him in the leg. On Friday evening he threatened to shoot several persons and was only prevented from doing so by the interference of bystanders. Later in the night he attacked a young German in a saloon and after maltreating him blew his brains out. Next morning a meeting of the citizens was called and nearly $1,000 raised, and parties sent out in all directions in pursuit of Gordon, who was discovered entrenched with a party of friends in Fort Lupton, 25 miles down the Platte. He finally made his escape after having his horse shot and being himself wounded.

"A Lesson of the Hour."

An article has appeared in the New York Independent bearing the above title, written by Horace Greeley, of the New York Tribune, the subject of which is William H. Seward, and the object seems to be to teach the "young politicians" of the country the lesson, "be faithful." In reading this article we were strongly impressed with the feeling that a far more significant lesson to young politicians was to be drawn from Mr. Greeley's course toward Governor Seward. The article, we think, in its whole scope and tenor, is not only in extremely bad taste, but it is an insult to the hosts of true and loyal republicans who deeply reverence and ardently love William H. Seward, and for his great ability and the unselfish devotion with which he has so long taught and defended republican principles.

Mr. Greeley draws a vivid picture of the storm of detraction and calumny with which Mr. Seward has been so wantonly assailed by his unscrupulous political opponents during the whole course of his public life, but fails to say much of the unexampled steadiness and courage with which he has so nobly breast the storm, and carried upward the cause to which he has given his whole heart and energies. He then goes on to show the present attitude of the pro-slavery parties toward Mr. Seward, for the purpose of proving that all the abuse and slander which has been heaped upon him was insincere and hypocritical; that his political enemies themselves did not believe the lies with which they were flooding the whole country. Was it necessary that republicans should be told this? And more than all, was it necessary that Mr. Horace Greeley should tell it to them? Are they such dolts and idiots that they for a moment believed that the democrats were sincere in their abuse of Gov. Seward? That the whole storm was not a piece of hollow, rotten lying, to serve political purposes?—An endeavor to destroy Mr. Seward's influence, and damage the republican cause? Any man who did not at once perceive so obvious a truth does not possess sufficient intelligence to belong to the republican party, and ought to be cast ignominiously out of it.

But how stood Mr. Horace Greeley in this matter? While the great mass of the true and tried republicans of the country were drawn closer to Mr. Seward because of the base attempt of a rotten and corrupt pro-slavery administration and party to tear and trample him down; while they took him into their heart of hearts, and looked forward with ill-repressed indignation to the time when, with strong and united hands, they could bear him up high above his corrupt vilifiers, and triumphantly vindicate at the same time, the man and the cause, Mr. Horace Greeley was looking on with a cool and selfish calculation, to see if he could not avail himself of this dirty work of our slavery-loving adversaries, and by defeating Mr. Seward, gratify a long cherished feeling of base, deep-seated enmity. He was able to use the unclean weapons furnished by our enemies, and Mr. Seward was defeated. We trust his desire for revenge is satisfied, and think he ought to be satisfied.

We have long had great respect and admiration for Mr. Greeley, but our respect and admiration were based upon the belief that he was honestly, conscientiously, unselfishly attached to the principles of the republican party; that he was in no sense an intriguing politician; was entirely above the small itching ambition for office which governs so many of our politicians; that his impulses were fervid and humane; that his sometimes erratic opinions were only the uncalculating frankness of a man of strong, generous and entirely honest convictions; that he looked upon the position he had nobly won as the leader and head of the most widely circulated and influential journal in the country, and the good which that position would enable him to do—as the object of his highest ambition, and the wealth and fame it brought him as the best reward he could receive.

We need not say how much we have been disappointed at his recent course and the exposure of his motives, how much mortification we suffered when we found that he had been always banking after the flesh-pots of office. We do not think it now becomes him to parade Mr. Seward before the public for any purpose. We warn him off from the domain of which he is trying to take possession. He is a poacher, and has no title or license to enter there; besides, in his tracks we find a filth which is highly offensive to all who value and venerate the premises.

We have no disposition to enlarge upon this subject. We have long held our peace, and should not now have spoken were it not that the article in the Independent excited feelings which we could not repress. As a friend of Governor Seward, we beg of Mr. Greeley to draw his lessons from some other source. We think it will be better for him and a great deal more satisfactory to the great mass of the republicans of the country.

The Slave Excitement in Texas.

It is believed by the politicians and others at Washington that the reported insurrectionary symptoms among the slaves of Texas, are got up by partisans for effect. It is very probable that such is the case.

Abolitionists are reported to have been hanged "for distributing arms to slaves." Two Campbellite preachers, named Blount and McKinney, the former from this state, were lynched in Texas last winter, and these insurrections are attributed to them and their friends. The whole Campbellite persuasion are looked upon with suspicion in Texas, as all religious organizations must be in every slave country. Hence the slaveholders are making war upon them, endeavoring to drive them out of the state. It is not improbable that the Campbellites make resistance, and endeavor to meet their oppressors with the same weapons used against them. The feud, from this beginning, may have grown up to some magnitude, but it is probable that the fears of the slaveholders have magnified it ten fold. Blount, after he had been lynched, came back to his home in Green county, Wis., and petitioned the legislature for redress. He never was an abolitionist, or even a republican, but avowed his adherence to pro-slavery democracy, after he had been nearly killed by a mob of slaveholders. It is therefore false to attribute this Texas insurrection, if there is one, to anti-slavery men. It is confined entirely within the camp of the slaveholders themselves and their allies. They fear to have even such pro-slavery sentiments as this Blount could preach, instilled into the minds of the slaves, under the guise of Christianity, and hence they drive him and his friends out the state by force. This is another instance of the fear-engendering barbarism of slavery.

Escape of S. M. Booth.—The telegraph informs us that S. M. Booth has escaped from the custom house at Milwaukee. While we are heartily glad that he is once more at liberty, our suspicions are strong that government employees have aided him. No one appears to have been about the establishment but the keeper, while but a short time ago the building was bristling with arms carried by ferocious guards. Where was the watchful, lynx-eyed Jehu, the model of marshals? We do not desire to insinuate that he was privy to this escape. The plan was probably kept from him, as he is too stupid to comprehend the necessity of getting rid of Booth. The truth is the government had won an elephant, and did not know what to do with him, so they connived at his escape.

A Good Example.—We learn from a correspondent at Edgerton that the Wide-Awake republicans of Fulton have already completed a thorough canvass of that town and have prepared an alphabetical poll list for future use. This list contains at this time the names of 47 voters, which indicates a republican majority of about thirty votes, as they expressed their sentiments last spring. "But this," says our correspondent "is no evidence by which to judge the future. The leading democrats are about evenly divided between Douglas and Breckinridge, and scores of the middle men are coming to the glorious standard of "Honest Old Abe." Hence set us down as rolling up this fall, a generous republican majority over all opposing candidates and parties, for the republicans of Edgerton and Fulton, although they have much more stern opposition to contend with than any other town or ward in Rock county, are in no wise deficient in action and duty."

Our correspondent, who is himself a working republican, speaks truly of the efficient services of the staunch republicans of Fulton. They labor hard, and as in this instance, they set about their business promptly and vigorously, and consequently may be counted upon with certainty when the day of election tells the story.

Latest from Europe.—The steamer Prince Albert has arrived with dates to the 24th. Affairs in Syria were unchanged. Matters continued to wear a very grave aspect. France was actually preparing for a powerful intervention and had notified the other states in order to have concert of action. The Sultan had written to France and England an expression of his grief at the events which have transpired, and promising an effort to establish order. It was reported that the Russian government had expressed a desire to act in harmony with France and England. Hostilities were about to commence in China at latest dates. Garibaldi announces his intention of annexing Sicily to Sardinia.
